Mondial Movers International Deploys New Electric Van

Mondial Movers International was named the “preferred launching customer” in Europe for the SAIC Maxus EV80 chassis cab. Lou Jedeloo, brand ambassador Maxus Europe, handed over the keys of this brand-new truck to Jan van Santen, director of Mondial Oostland Removals, the Mondial Movers branch in Groningen. They will use the electric van for a variety of customers, including the University of Groningen.

Mondial Movers International has 25 locations in the Netherlands. Those branches have been investing for years in extending the number of electric moving trucks. Mondial Oostland Removals is the first company in Europe that ordered the Maxus EV80 chassis cab. Maxus is a brand of the Chinese car manufacturer SAIC, and the Maxus EV80 was introduced in 2018 at the European market in two versions: the van and the chassis cab.

The electric van has a range of almost 100 miles (depending on driving conditions) and requires about two hours to fully charge via fast charging. It can transport approximately 17m³ of items.

As a designated preferred launching customer, Mondial can now get expedited delivery of the vehicle. In return, Maxus will be given access to the actual usage results.
